INTRODUCTION.

An increasing interest in family history and genealogy has caused numerous inquiries concerning early families of Claremont.

In many instances no replies can be made for lack of evidence that the parties were buried here. No town records of death exist prior to 1846. Many of the stones have already become so weather beaten that it is with difficulty they are transcribed, and a few years will entirely obliterate them.

Believing that a printed record of these will be of service to posterity as well as of value to the historian and genealogist, a transcript has been made of all the stones in the West Claremont church yard, the village burying ground, the Jarvis yard, and all prior to 1846 in the Catholic cemetery. The town records give dates of deaths of all interments here since that year.

The usual couplets and verses upon the old stones have not been copied unless they in some way give facts worth recording. In other words the record is a plain statement of facts with such notes as it has seemed proper to add for reference or information.

To this transcript it is not proposed to add any extended notes. In some instances, however, items are introduced regarding the native place, and service as soldiers or public officials. Whenever the maiden name of a wife or widow is known, but does not appear on the stone, it is inserted in parentheses.

The usual abbreviations will be used, omitting in most instances the words "died," and "aged."

The names are arranged alphabetically for easy reference.

THE OLD BURYING GROUND, CLAREMONT VILLAGE.

The first mention of this yard occurs in the town records as follows:
"August 27, 1792. Voted to give off the school lot two acres of land for a Burying yard near the meeting house.

"Voted—to accept a highway from Atkins Bridge (now called the upper bridge) to the meeting house through James Strowbridge's land.

"Voted—to exchange one acre and two rods of land off of the school lot No. 29 with Mr. Samuel Whipple for one acre and two rods of land on which the meeting house stands.

"March 31, 1801, Mr. John Whitty was appointed sexton to dig graves in the Burying yard near the meeting house.

"March 13, 1804. Voted—That a hearse and harness be procured for the Burying yard by the meeting house and also one for the church burying yard."

By reference to the town treasurer's accounts it is found that these hearses were built by William Rhodes at a cost of $182.61, and that Capt. Timothy Munger was paid $63.00 for a hearse house.

- Petty Lydia (Field) Mrs., (wife of Reuben). Dec. 30, 1834, 92y.
- Petty Reuben Capt. March 16, 1818, 80y.
- Capt. Petty's father, Joseph, was in a scouting party against Indians near what is now Northfield, Mass., in May, 1748; being wounded and unable to travel, he was left beside a spring to live if he could until help came. Two days after Capt. Phineas Stevens, afterwards of Charlestown, N. H., with a party from Fort Dummer, made search but found no trace. In June, Lieutenant Hunt went with fifteen men from Northfield "to bury Sergeant Petty." Presumably they did so. Reuben, the subject, was Sergeant Petty's oldest son, born July 31, 1738. He served in the French and Indian wars, was sergeant and was taken prisoner at Fort William Henry, Aug. 9, 1757. He married Lydia Field, and had seven children prior to 1772, about which time he probably came to Claremont.

 Putnam Chester and Elisha, sons of the late Capt. Solomon
 Putnam who, on the morning of the 29th of January, 1814, in the same bed were found suffocated. A kettle of common coals having been placed in their room for comfort proved the fatal instrument of their death; the former in the 27th, the latter in the 19th year of his age.
 "How many roses perish in their bloom,
 How many suns alas go down at noon."
 This fatality occurred in the house now owned and occupied by Deacon James Piper. The house had been newly finished and plastered, or an addition thereto, and because of its dampness the coals of fire were placed in the room. The two parties were uncles of Solomon Putnam now of Weathersfield, Vt.

Woolson Thomas. July 3, 1837, 60y.

He came to Claremont about 1813. Was a noted inventor and was the first successful maker of cooking stoves in this country. About 1818 he made the first cast iron plows ever made. His furnaces were located near what is now the Sullivan Machinery Company's plant. He also built several town clocks, including the one in the old Claremont town hall. The building in which these were made stood near the present residence of P. P. Coburn, on Sullivan street. He lived and died on the spot where Dr. Jasper Back's house now is. He was representative in 1825-26, state senator in 1828, and the same year presidential elector, casting his vote for John Quincy Adams.

THE WEST PART CHURCH-YARD.

The first mention of a yard for the burial of the dead is in the town records of March 29, 1768, in which it was "Voted; to take two acres of land off the North West corner of the Fair for a burying place."

On May 26, 1784, it was "Voted; to take two acres ten rods to be laid out eighteen rods East and West and twenty five rods seven links North and South for a burying place for the use and benefit of the town to bury their dead in and to be alienated to no other use whatever. Lying and butting North on Mr. Ebenezer Rices house lot and West on the Church Glebe. Also four acres for the use and benefit of the Apiscopal Church commonly called the Church of England, for a church yard. including the ground on which the church now stands, said land butting North on Ebenezer Rices and West on the burying yard before mentioned."

Alden Joseph. September, 1778, 22y.

Alden Adam. February 11, 1777, 24y.

Joseph and Adam were brothers and sons of John and Rebecca (Nightingale) Alden. They were born in Bridgewater, Mass., and became, about 1772, settlers in the south east part of the town, being part owners of what was known as the "Alden 1200 acre farm." They were lineal descendants in the fourth generation of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins.

- Ashley Oliver. April 9, 1818, 74y.

Oliver Ashley was the son of Col. Samuel, one of the proprietors of the town, and one of the early settlers. Was Captain of the Claremont company at Bennington, and established Ashley's Ferry in 1784. In October, 1788, he married Olive Lawrence. Another record shows an Oliver to have married Eunice Doolittle Aug. 9, 1770. If the same Oliver it is probable that Olive Lawrence was a second wife.

- Ashley Olive (Lawrence), wife of Oliver. Oct. 20, 1825, 74y.
- Ashley Samuel, Hon. "Blessed with good natural talents, and a heart rightly to improve them, he in various departments of civil and military life exhibited a character honorable to himself and useful to others. Having presided for several years in the lower court of this county he with probity and fidelity displayed the virtues of the patriot and Christian, as well in public as domestic life. The small pox put an end to his earthly course Feb. 18, 1792, aged 71."

Ashley was one of the proprietors of the town, settling here soon after its incorporation, and doing much to promote its growth. An extended notice of him was published in the Granite Monthly, May, 1892, and a notice in the same magazine a few months later.

He was born in Morristown, N. J., in 1736, and was a nephew of John Kilburn of Walpole, N. H., the celebrated Indian fighter. He settled first in Hebron, Conn., where he married Hannah Sumner Sept. 25, 1746. (She was a daughter of Dr. Thomas Sumner and sister of Benjamin; born April 23, 1730). From Hebron they removed to Colchester, Conn., where they resided for a few years and he represented the town in 1754. Was a soldier in the northern army under Sir William Johnson, from whom he received a commission in 1755. Was attached to Col. Williams's regiment when that officer, with 1000 men, assisted by Hendrick, the Mohawk chief, and 200 Indians, gave battle to the French troops near Lake George, in which engagement Lt. Lilburn and Diskeau, the French commander, were wounded, and Col. Williams killed. In May, 1756, Kilburn was commissioned Lieutenant by Gov. Fitch of Connecticut, and he removed from Colchester to Surry, N. H., and about 1769 to Claremont. He signed the "Association Test" in May, 1776, and was enlisted to serve in the army when he died. They had only one son, John, born Feb. 2, 1772.

Roys Joel. "Here lies buried Mr. Joel Roys Who Fell in to a Fier and Burnt to Death, Sept. 4, 1782, in the 27th year of his age. O Mortality."

The circumstances of his death have been related by his granddaughter, Mrs. Harriet Parmelee Smith, of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose mother was a daughter of the subject. It is said by Mrs. Smith that he was engaged in burning a pile of logs, and they rolled, falling upon him and pinning him to the ground. He shouted for help and his wife attempted to assist him but to no avail. A townmeeting was being held and all the men in the neighborhood were away so that no assistance could be summoned, and she was compelled to see her husband burn to death. He was a Revolutionary soldier, serving three years.

Sumner Benjamin, Col. "An early settler of Claremont, and a distinguished man of his time. Died 1815, aged 78. Prudence (Hubbard) his wife died 1821, aged 82. Their sixth son George Wheaton Sumner died 1806, aged 27. His wife Matilda Hutchins died 1814, aged 31, and their only daughter, Caroline Matilda, wife of Dr. James Hall, died at Windsor, Vt., 1829, aged 24. This stone was erected by order of their lineal descendant, Geo. Wheaton Sumner Hall of Baltimore, Md., in 1884."

Benjamin Sumner came to Claremont about 1767; was selectman in 1769, town clerk, and a large owner as proprietor of rights in the town and representative to the legislature in 1784-85-93-94. He was not an ardent supporter of the American cause during the Revolution, which doubtless had much to do with his not having attained more important positions, as he was a man of marked ability and qualified to serve. He lived at what is now known as the "Cupola farm."

Thomas. "O Senes Memento Mortis. Sacred to the memory of Zara and Orlando Thomas, sons of Zara and Elizabeth Thomas. They were killed with lightning July 8, 1805, Zara in his 18th year, Orlando in his 7th year."

The two boys were standing in an open doorway during a hard thunder shower. Directly over their heads hung an old musket. This is supposed to have attracted the lightning. A number of other people were in the room at the time, and all were stunned. The lightning played curious pranks with the furniture; a single long sliver was taken by it out of a hard wood table, doing it no other damage. The house where this occurred stood in what was called "Punkshire," near the old Grannis homestead, in West Claremont.

THE JARVIS YARD.

PRIVATE.

The following inscription is on one of the monuments :

“Nathaniel Jarvis, born in 1668, came from Wales to Boston, and married Elizabeth Peabody of Maine. He died in 1738. Leonard Jarvis his son, born 1715; married Sarah Church, granddaughter of Col. Church, distinguished in the first Indian wars. He died 1770, his wife in 1790. The children who survived were Leonard, Samuel Gardner, Charles, Nathaniel, Sarah, Mary, Benjamin and Philip. Dr. Leonard Jarvis, born in Boston June 22, 1774, married Clarissa H. Draper, born July 8, 1786. Their children were Susan Pierce, Samuel Gardner, Leonard and Russell.”

Dr. Leonard Jarvis removed to Claremont in 1797, and died Feb. 9, 1848. He purchased the farm of Hon. Sanford Kingsbury, and established the private yard in which are buried members of the family. The location is one of the most beautiful in town, commanding as it does—or rather did before the trees became too large—a wide stretch of country, including the valley of the Connecticut for many miles. All the inscriptions are here given, except one, that being a flat stone which has become so worn by the elements that only a few words can be deciphered.

MORTUARY STATISTICS.

No records of deaths were kept in town, except by families, prior to 1846. The compiler has, therefore, arranged by years the deaths as recorded by the inscriptions. While it is certain that these do not include all the deaths of each year, it in some measure shows the death rate. From 1846 to date a careful record has been kept, the credit for it being due Mr. Alfred Burrill, for many years sexton of the town, and its continuance by his son, Mr. George H. Burrill, his successor as sexton.

* Four Irish children died this year, the age and sex of whom is not known.

The following table of census returns of Claremont is appended to show—if inclination requires—the average death rates, or percentage of deaths. It is copied from Vol. XI, p. 263, of the New Hampshire Agricultural Reports.

*The ways of Death are soothing and serene,
And all the words of Death are grave and sweet.
From camp and church, the fireside and the street,
She beckons forth—and strife and song have been.*

*A summer night descending cool and green,
And dark on daytime's dust and stress and heat,
The ways of Death are soothing and serene.
And all the words of Death are grave and sweet.*

*O glad and sorrowful, with triumphant mien
And radiant faces look upon and greet
This last of all your lovers, and to meet
Her kiss, the Comforter's, your spirit lean. . . .
The ways of Death are soothing and serene.*
